

Elif Hilal Karaman examines the lives of Ephesian women by comparing literary and archaeological data from Ephesus with early Christian writings, including New Testament letters and the writings of the bishops. She shows that early Christian literature drew upon cultural elements from their surrounding Greco-Roman world.