

Gender, Development, and the State in India

Carole Spary

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Abbreviations	xiii
1 Introduction	1
2 Gender, development, and the state in India: debates and perspectives	23
3 Mapping national planning policy since 1990	58
4 Gender mainstreaming and the state in India: national initiatives	75
5 Subnational policy in context: a profile of two Indian states	108
6 Gendered institutional contexts: state-level machineries?	151
7 Gendered discourses of development in two Indian states	185
8 Gendered developmental subjectivities: actors, agency, and gender mainstreaming	211
9 Conclusion	235
Index	247